

Unit 8 – Reflections

In Unit 8, I was introduced to the concept of cryptography and how it cooperates with operating systems. A few years ago, I got my electronic devices stolen, and I remember how bad I felt when I realised that the thieves would have access to all my files stored within my devices. Since then, I am very careful and attentive regarding the safety of my data, and I always make sure to keep everything encrypted and backed up. This is why this unit was one of my favourites.

During this week, I prepared my second collaborative discussion regarding a discontinued software called TrueCrypt. In my post, I had to determine whether this software is still safe to be used and if I would recommend it to a friend.

Overall, I really enjoyed this unit.
